

Three steps for a better finish.

ANTI-GRAFFITI + DRY-ERASE LAMINATE

01 / Separate the liner with two pieces of tape

If the laminate is difficult to separate from the liner, attach one piece of tape to the laminate and one to the liner near a corner. Pull the pieces apart.

Then web your laminator as with other cold laminates. The clear liner may be harder to separate than paper, but it helps provide a smooth adhesive overlay without "orange peel."

02

Laminate in 8- to 10-foot sections

Vandal Guard is dimensionally stable, whereas printed PVC vinyl is not. Working in smaller sections reduces the risk of tunneling and creasing if the vinyl is not fed straight into the laminator.

03

Support the print. Prevent creases.

DO NOT let laminated prints fall to the floor. Prints laminated with Vandal Guard will not smooth as easily with a heat gun if allowed to fold and crease during lamination. Avoid overstretching vinyl or laminate, and avoid folding or draping graphics in a way that creates a crease.

For full application guidance, review the Vandal Guard Product Information Bulletin.

info@vandalguardusa.com | (800) 652-5783